

INDIVISIBLE: African American Assembly

Greetings from the Founder of Sacculturalhub.com,

DID YOU KNOW? There are African American Assembly meetings (Indivisible) that are being held to “educate and empower” the most under-served constituency within the Sacramento community; the African-American population.

What is “Indivisible”? A diverse group of citizens who are dedicated to addressing the most pressing issues that African Americans face today. Indivisible holds monthly meetings with Mayor Kevin Johnson in which the members participate in discussion and action in the following three areas:

- Educational Achievement: Closing the achievement gap between African American students and their counterparts
- Political Influence: Political and civic engagement amongst African Americans
- Economic Empowerment: Economic well-being of the African American community

Over the past year nearly 600 African American community members have gathered at the Guild Theater to discuss the “Black Agenda.” The Indivisible group has identified three key areas of focus: (1) Education, (2) Economics and (3) Politics. The next steps are to take this discussion and action to the next level. Spread the word and be at the next Indivisible: African American Assembly meeting on Mon-9/17 at 6 pm at 2828 35th St. in Oak Park – Sacramento.

Propelling Forward!

During a prior meeting the group was challenged with a simple goal: FILL THE GUILD THEATER. They have consistently averaged 130 attendees each month but have yet to fill the 200-seat theater for the monthly meeting. Why is it important to fill the theater you may ask? (1) The ultimate goal is unity. There are over 70,000 African Americans in Sacramento and the group set a challenge of bringing a small segment of our community together each month. (2) The group assigned team leaders and all agreed that they would fill the theater before the year ends. (3) Indivisible wants to create a movement and the movement will require soldiers (as the group needs to be able to prove that as a community, we can deliver soldiers).

As quoted by my colleague, Brother John Taylor (Indivisible Education Team Leader): "This is our time. This is, as my fraternity Brother Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. once said 'the fierce urgency of now', and if we don't take advantage of the momentum and begin to show ourselves relevant to ourselves, no other group will take us seriously." We must seize this unprecedented opportunity where we have the first African American President of the United States serving simultaneously with the first African American Mayor of Sacramento. We must come together and build a united front as we close out 2012. The time is now!

I, Pleshette Robertson-Founder of Sacculturalhub.com, have attended several meetings and they have been so very educational, news worthy for knowing what the heck is going on in regards to our participation in politics and business. We had better get-in-the-know, stay connected and support these types of networks that deem to put us so far ahead as to what we should be doing to take action in business, get our neighbor or relatives registered to vote, inform others of relevant info on what could directly increase their wealth.

If you have questions, please contact Essence Hill at (925) 895-6950 or e-mail echohill82@gmail.com.

Let's fill the Guild Theatre with 200 persons on Mon-9/17 at 6 pm. There is POWER IN NUMBERS! Don't miss the opportunity to be present and informed about what's important and learn about what can contribute to the wealth of our community!!!

True Blessings,

Pleshette Robertson
